

TRANSCRIPT: Making choices

Craig Clarke

Olivia has a target whereby she will recognise two people's voices who are familiar to her. So, at the moment, she's learning to recognise the voice of her mother and her father. So she listens to a brief recording of both her mother and her father speak, one at a time, and then she's presented with two photographs. So having heard, for example, her mother speak she will then identify from the two photographs who it is that she's heard speaking and she'd get lots of praise from the adult working with her for her achievements.
